SHORT STORY FOR EVENING HOURS

AT THE REHEARSAL

It was 8:10 o'clock, and besides the leader, who was laying out the music, the flute and a second violin were the only arrivals. The flute walked about slowly, blowing beautiful trills and arpeggios, while the second violin was making brave efforts to tune his strings. The leader frequently stopped to consult his watch, and, after completing the distribution of the parts, growled out: "If I set the next rehearsal for 6 o'clock I don't suppose there would be any more likelihood of their being here by 8."

At this juncture the cello and cornet appeared, and after necessary formalities of preparation they joined in the general din of preliminary practice. To this were added within the next ten minutes the notes of the bassoon, the French horn and the trombone, two violins, the second cornet and a viola.

At 8:40 the leader rapped for silence, which came gradually.

When comparative quiet was restored the viola asked: "Where's Miss Monroe?"

"Burnt her hand and can't play for a month," said the cello, staring into vacancy, while he executed a cadenza of considerable brilliancy.

"Did anybody see Jack May?" inquired the trombone.

"Yes," said the first violin, improvising in the seventh position, well up toward his chin, "and he promised to show up sure."

"Where's your music?" asked the leader of the first cornet.

"By Jove, I forgot it."

"Very clever of you. Run right home and get it."

"I guess I can fake my part," answered the cornet, apologetically.

"Guess again," responded the leader.

"You've got to have the music. You're rank enough with your notes in front of you; without them you would be unplayable."

"Any body got an extra music stand?" Mine's broken." This from the flute.

"You'll have to use a chair," said the leader.

At 8:45 he rapped on his desk. "Take the 'Serenade'."

A Voice—"Give us the A."

The A is given and there comes a re-tuning. The music then begins and proceeds for forty bars when a polyphonic tangle demands a halt.

"Back to B," says the leader.

"I haven't got any B," says the double bass.

"Oh, yes you have, Jake. Seven measures from where we stopped."

Jake finds a place, but it's the wrong place, and four false starts are made before the work is resumed. Smooth sailing for three minutes. At this point the insurrection calls for heroic treatment.

"A serenade need not be played forissimo all the way through. The supposed maiden for whose benefit we are struggling is probably neither deaf nor is she more than a mile away. Tone down. And say, fellows, what's the use of my beating time if you don't pay attention to it? I don't care for it as a physical exercise. Dumb-bells have got it beat a block. I'm merely trying to keep you together."

At last the end is reached.

"Well, you all came out on the right note, anyway. Try the octet."

A Voice—"Give us the A." General tuning up as before.

At this point the first violin breaks his E string and makes remarks of a nature derogatory to things in general; after temporary repairs are hurriedly made the leader raps again for attention.

"Now—one, two, three, one, two, three—that's fast enough." They begin.

After four bars—"What in thunder—what key are you playing in?"

A Voice—"Give us the A." All re-tune as before and after the sixth round with the allegro movement, the leader declares it a draw and remarks with a sigh: "Well, it might be worse. Take the adante."

This goes better. The double bass spills the contents of his fello on the floor in the midst of a particularly effective passage, necessitating a stop, otherwise there is no untoward incident.

"Can't we end up with something bright and lively?" asks the viola.

"This classical stuff gives me considerable pain."

"When are we going to give a concert?" inquires the flute.

"Concert!" sniffs the leader, contemptuously. "At the rate of progress we are making, we can give a concert in about four years—to deaf mutes."

LOLANIS BEAT Y. M. C. A. MALES, DIAMOND HEADS

The Y. M. C. A. Association football team met its first battle and in it defeat, at the hands, or rather feet, of the lolanis. The team work of the lolanis won the game, good work being done in this direction by Blackman, Woo and Anderson. The Y. M. C. A. team numbered several good individual players, but lacked combination.

A noticeable feature of the game was the tremendous amount of fouling done especially in the second half. The Christians were by far the worst offenders. They used their hands unblushingly, especially Isenberg, who on several occasions wound himself about an opponent with an octopus-like grasp. The attention of Linesman Jack Catton was called to these tactics repeatedly, but the genial Jock, whose sympathies are said to be decidedly anti-lolani, declined to interfere.

The game ended with the score standing: lolani, 3; Y. M. C. A., 1.

In the second game, between the Diamond Heads and the Males, the former team surprised all by giving the veteran champions a good run for their money. The Males scored one goal from a penalty kick in the first half and in the second half the Diamond Heads held them down well, threatening their goal on several occasions but without reaching the successful climax. Referee Waldron did excellent work and fouling was promptly penalized.

The game resulted in a score of Males 1, Diamond Heads 0.

The standing of the teams is now as follows:

	P.	W.	L.	D.	For	Against.
lolanis	2	2	0	0	5	2
Males	2	1	0	1	0	0
Y. M. C. A.	1	0	1	0	1	2
D. Heads	2	0	2	0	1	3

The line-up of the teams which participated in the two games was as follows:

lolanis—Kea, goal; backs, E. Kellett, J. Kellett; halves, T. Carter, M. Anderson, Mon Yin; forwards, L. G. Blackman, J. Woo, J. Anderson, J. Bolster, E. Mahaula.

Y. M. C. A.—Goal, S. F. Beardmore; backs, E. B. Turner, J. Macauley; halves, L. Spalding, G. Isenberg, J. Gill; forwards, C. Osa, G. Waterhouse, Plunkett, F. Haley, Robbins.

Referee—D. W. Anderson.

Linesmen—Messrs. McKinnon and J. Catton.

Males—Goal, Belsier; backs, McGill, R. Anderson; halves, R. Chillingworth, center, Foster Davis; forwards, Catteral, H. Bailey, Simpson, F. Bailey, Gray, Simpson.

Diamond Heads—Goal, W. Chillingworth; backs, E. Desha, R. Clark; halves, E. Grune, J. Clark, D. Sherwood; forwards, L. Kee, G. Desha, P. Gleason, A. Williams, V. Lemon.

Linesmen—Messrs. McKinnon and J. Catton.

The C. A. S. S. Mlowera arrived last evening from British Columbia after a rough voyage. She left a few minutes after 10 p. m. for the Colonias.

Six passengers were for Honolulu and a large lot went through. The vessel was 36 hours late. This was due to the fact that she left Vancouver 14 hours behind time and after passing Cape Flattery was almost continually bucking heavy weather. It was one of the roughest trips in the history of the Mlowera. No damage resulted from the high seas.

ILAE MAKES RESPONSE

Editor Evening Bulletin.—I saw in your paper of the 8th inst, a piece of made up story of jealousy and partly false report against Dibble K. Ilae, Jailor Pukoo Jail. I would never make a kick if the whole report were true but it is not in behalf of the report about the hunter that was the biggest liar that ever made on the surface of the earth and printed in your paper, but I am not going to be mean with him, what he should do is to tell of what he had seen, but not what he heard. I would like to ask you to give the name of the one that makes the report. It did not hurt me very bad when I saw it because the residents of Molokai knew nothing of the kind, but it was purposely done for sake of enemy, so as to make the Public laugh over it, and I would like to consult with him through Letter, to straighten up his report, otherwise to stop it altogether because it is very easy to make up a liar but the result of it is bitter.

I wish you to allow me to put this in your paper as a reply.

Yours Truly,
DIBBLE K. ILAE.

Pukoo, Molokai, Jan. 12, '06.

P. S.—Kindly Please answer this Letter by next week, and oblige.

DIBBLE K. ILAE.

SIXTH INNING.
First Half.—Boyle and Carey add two more runs to the Tenth's tally sheet and then Bushnell squashes all hopes of more runs this inning by retiring the side upon a double play, which he executed unassisted.

The seventh, eighth and ninth innings were quickly played without results. Captain Schoeffel easily led in batting honors, tearing off a double and two singles in three times at bat.

McFADDEN AND TATE

Jack McFadden of Honolulu and Eddie Tate of San Francisco met in a six round bout on Saturday night for the featherweight championship of the islands. After the six rounds of some clever, and at times exciting, boxing, Referee D'Mara declared the bout a draw. The decision was met with approval by those present, although Tate's seconds could see nothing but a victory for their man. Duffy, who was behind Tate, made a nuisance of himself in the demonstration he made over the decision.

This contest has been talked of for some time but the opportunity to bring the two men together was presented when Tate arrived on the transport Friday. The match was arranged on a minute's notice and the fighters had no chance to train. A hall over Woods & Sheldon's store was secured for the encounter and after a few preliminary arrangements the fight was on.

There was no ring warmer as no boys could be secured to box in a preliminary. Tate entered the ring first, followed by Duffy and McGarrity as seconds. McFadden followed with Sullivan and Bettencourt in his corner.

O'Mara introduced Sullivan of San Francisco as willing to meet any one from 135 to 145 pounds. Duffy also stepped into the ring and made a bow. Bill Huihui climbed through the ropes and accepted all challenges amid applause.

Larry Dee struck the gong and the two fighters took the scratch. Both showed the lack of training and seemed more willing to enter into a hugging rather than a slugging match. The round opened up with mostly feinting for an opening. Tate was the aggressor and proved clever at covering up. He was too willing to enter into the later tactics. McFadden used a straight left and often sent the sturdy Tate's head back while the latter was coming in. In the clinches both tried chops for the kidneys.

Each round was a repetition of the other with little damage done in any round. Both McFadden and Tate went to their knees during the bout but it was more from slips than the other man's punch.

Duffy, in Tate's corner, did more fighting with his mouth than Tate did with his hands. His tough remarks were little appreciated by the better class present. Such talking in a fighter's corner should be stopped.

In the fifth round McFadden drew the blood from Tate's nose. This was the only damage done in the encounter.

When the gong came to the center of the ring and stood in the center of the ring and exchanged hard punches. This was the best round of the evening and the spectators all stood in excitement.

Everyone left the hall well pleased with the night's entertainment.

LONDON'S PAUPER INCREASE.

London, Dec. 25.—Official figures relating to the poor of London show that the number in receipt of pauper relief in nearly every month of the year now ending has been greater than in any of the previous forty years compared in the returns, with the exception of the period from 1867 to 1871. The ratio of paupers per 1000 of population has been higher in most of the months of this year than in any previous year since 1874.

Not only has there been a remarkable increase in the outdoor relief, but the rise in the numbers entering workhouses has continued. In no year of the history of the poor law has the population in the work houses been greater for December.

Enlightened Hospitality

If we are cheerful, sympathetic and gay, the world responds in kind; if we are gloomy and gray, the world sighs a solemn accompaniment. It is a matter of fact that we largely get from the world in proportion to what we give. The idea that you have got to work for happiness and brightness, actually paying for it in its own coin, is true in every phase of life. It is true of your home as of yourself. A gloomy house will not attract cheerful people, and a dim light will shadow a smile.

Have the light of lights.—Electric Light,—installed in your home and all will be light and happiness, and there will be never a shadow.
